Acella Construction announces new LEED AP

NORWELL, Mass.—Acella Construction Corporation today announced that Ryan Klebes, Project Manager, has passed the LEED certification examination and has become a LEED AP (Accredited Professional.)

Klebes, who has been with Acella since 2003, has been working on projects for clients such as Computershare, Riverview School, and the Briarcliffe Manor Alzheimer's Care facility. His previous experience includes a project management role with Lee Kennedy Company. He holds a Bachelors degree from Wentworth Institute of Technology.

“Ryan’s commitment to becoming an accredited LEED AP is yet another step in Acella Constructions drive towards becoming one of New England’s premier Green Builders,” said David Dirubbo, president of Acella Construction.
